The origin of the electro-homoeopathic system of medicine dates back in the 1800s when an Italian researcher called Count Caesar Mattei came up with the theory that diseases originated from derangement of either blood or lymph and that they could be cured by a proper utilisation of the active ingredients of a large number of plants. Supported by a materia medica of 114 plant remedies, the system closely resembles homeopathy in its method of potentiating drugs for use. The book is the result of an analytical study carried out on 114 medicinal plants in relation to their composition and medicinal properties. The authors have also attempted to provide for a thorough classification of the plants used, together with information on the part used and active principles. It is hoped that this piece of information will be absolutely invaluable in affecting a radical cure in its true essence.

Materia Medica of Electro Homoeopathic Medicine This is a path-breaking work from the house of one of the stalwarts. The book is divided into well-defined chapters which are further divided into easy-to-digest sub-sections. The broad division of the text is into four sections. Section I deals with History & Understanding the Language in general. Section II is about Communication -- Body language as communication, Communication skills, Intra-psycho communication, Silence and Characters of body language. Section III focuses on the core elements of body language like Personal Appearance, Gestures, Posture and Stance, Facial expressions, Eye expressions, Voice and Intonation, Space and Distancing, Tactile Communication, Vocabulary and Universal gestures. Section IV takes care of homeopathic perspective including Clinical repertory and practical cases. The detailed text with illustrations under each and every section is indeed spellbinding and insightful. The author has thrown light over the minutest of expressions and has explained their significance from psychological, philosophical, spiritual and homeopathic point of view. The ultimate benefit of this book is that it widens and expands our consciousness at all levels. This book has a different perspective of understanding not only the world around us but the world inside each of us. The leaves a long lasting impression on the mind and will help in increasing the ability of the physician to observe a peculiar expression in their patients. This book will also be useful to all teachers, doctors, psychologists, psychiatrists, students, businessmen, actors, lay persons and all those directly or indirectly related to homeopathy and concerned with the art of healing. The whole new world of possibilities and channels of prescribing has been explored and analysed through this book. The study of 'sarcodes' is one of the most grey areas of homeopathic materia medica, which has not yet been thoroughly explored. Most of the sarcodes are not proved as per standard guidelines of Dr Hahnemann nor majority of them have been clinically verified. On scrutiny of the available literature on sarcodes, a lot of differences and contradictions are witnessed which lead to confusion in the minds of the readers, particularly in respect to their sources, preparation, clinical applicability, effective potencies and doses etc., There is no clarity whether sarcodes should be earmarked as a separate class of 'animal kingdom'. Moreover the signs and symptoms of each sarcode are not documented uniformly in different homoeopathic Materia Medicas, which naturally confounds the readers.

Bettina Blessing's study follows the progress of homoeopathic therapies up to World War II. It focuses mainly on the development of double and complex remedies which were highly controversial even at the times of Hahnemann, who also experimented with double remedies. Various orientations of homoeopathy, spagyric, naturopathy and conventional medicine advocated homoeopathic remedies and supported medical concepts that were based on 'holistic' views. One of the proponents of alternative healing methods was the renowned Berlin surgeon August Bier (1861-1949). For him, homoeopathy was one of several possible medical approaches and, in accordance with Heraclitus, he argued that a 'harmonious view' of medicine was not possible as long as one of them was excluded.

The Allopathic system of (medicinal) treatment is a Conventional therapy having the largest number of hospitals, dispensaries, physicians surgeon, specialists backed by on-going research projects and new medicines. There is no element of secrecy involved as, whatever is published and whenever a new medicine or diagnostic method is introduced, or new surgical procedures introduced, the knowledge spreads to every nook and corner of the world. These are fields where allopathy scores over other palthies. Moreover, there is a greater awareness among masses about allopathic medicines than any other (Complementary or alternate) therapy-counter sales have further popularised such medicines as most chemists, assuming the role of a doctor, keep on prescribing the medicines even to the educated and well-informed class. But, Very few persons, those who claim to know everything about medicines, know about drug-interactions, reactions, side-effects of medicines. There are very few patients who can afford to pay an exorbitant consultation fee charged by the specialists and, if such doctors supply medicines also, the bill amount shoots up further. A poor person either, per force, is obliged to visit a Govt. a hospital where he has to face long queues, humiliation and long waiting hours with minimal redressal, if at all, of his problems, such less privileged patients and their allies doubts/relatives, due to sparse and limited financial resources, can ill afford to visit such high charging specialists and Nursing homes or even so called 'general Hospitals.' The outcome of all such ordeals and related constraints lands the hapless patient at the door of quacks or the chemists as a result of which either he meets his terminal end without getting a proper treatment or fall into the traps of unqualified and practitioners.
