Rather than taking on more risk, US insurers hit hard by the crisis pulled back from risk taking, relative to insurers not hit as hard by the crisis. Capital requirements alone do not explain this risk reduction: insurers hit hard reduced risk within assets with identical regulatory treatment. State level US insurance regulation makes it unlikely this risk reduction was driven by moral suasion. Other financial institutions also reduce risk after large shocks: the same approach applied to banks yields similar results. My results suggest that, at least in some circumstances, franchise value can dominate, making gambling for resurrection too risky.

Variable Annuities Weiss Ratings' Guide to Life and Annuity Insurers Winter 2016-17A Quarterly Compilation of Insurance Company Ratings and Analyses Life Insurance Fact Book Weiss Ratings Guide to Life & Annuity Insurers, Spring 2016 Inspired by Koijen & Yogo's paper on Shadow Insurance, attention is caught on the significance in magnitude of the growth in poorly regulated, opaque reinsurance transactions between ceding insurers and captive reinsurers present in the US Life & Annuity insurance market. Upon research, it is found that since the initial publication of Shadow Insurance in 2013, much regulatory attention has been put on addressing this issue through various initiatives, projects and regulatory revisions. Examining the impacts of these regulatory enhancements, it is found, through a case study of nine Life & Annuity insurance subsidiaries of MetLife Inc. and Prudential Financials., that from year 2012 to 2016, the number of reinsurance agreements sees a decline, the amount of reinsurance ceded to shadow insurer remained stable at an annual growth rate of 1% only, while the amount ceded to shadow insurer per capital & surplus of the ceding company sees an annual reduction of 4%. On the other hand, regulatory arbitrage and tax benefit remain attractive incentives for the use of shadow insurance, as more than 90% of total amount ceded to shadow insurers are to reinsurers domiciled in Barbados, Bermuda & Cayman Islands, and about 90% of total amount ceded to affiliated non-shadow reinsurers are to affiliates domiciled in Arizona and New Jersey. Once shadow risk is incorporated into the calculation of the Risk Based Capital (RBC) ratio, the adjusted ratio sees on average an 81% decline between year 2012 and 2016. Although the plunge is significant, the discrepancy between reported and adjusted RBC ratio remains stable in the past five years.
