My Date with Editors

Taylor & Francis

“Someone's sitting in the shade today because someone planted a tree a long time ago.” We are surrounded with people of immense talent, all they need is a little recognition. This book is our way of providing a seed of opportunity to the people around us. Our Co-authors have exquisitely represented us to accomplish this mission. We present to you Confessions of a Moody Maniac which accommodates a mélange of thoughts, ideas, emotions and creativity. “JUST BEYOND THE HORIZON OF THE SO-CALLED IMPOSSIBLE IS INFINITE POSSIBILITY” Title -Confessions of a Moody Maniac Compiler name -Aanya Tanwar, Anjali Tripathi, Tanvi Seksaria Presented by Shruthi Censorship in India, 1930-1960 Cambridge University Press The book unfolds my professional performance. I have revealed my best and the worst both. It is a saga of a journalist though many would doubt whether work as proof - reader counts for journalism as it was not considered the mainstream of journalism, rather a stigma attached with the likes of me for 16 years in a row. Then there is reporting stint for 20 years which had its pitfalls and glory. Expressing views on contemporary issues has been changeable because I hold opinion and opinion does not hold me. Non-payment to my contribution to periodicals as free-lance journalist may sound grumbling, but it is pain of a pen- pusher who at last surmises that one cannot survive with free-lancing in Bihar. Readers may ask why I don't write for the periodicals published outside Bihar. Frankly speaking I don't consider myself as a journalist of calibre. I am still a student of journalism. Moreover, I have been interested in matters Bihar from very beginning and am still groping in darkness as far as knowledge about my native state is concerned. The book is a not a literary piece that would involve your attention. As journalism is a literature in hurry, my writing in English may not be considered upto the mark and for many literary geniuses and eminent journalists it may be a foolish exercise. But I am sure that whoever came into my journalistic sphere his resemblance can be found in me somewhat or more. Journalism is cynic business and one can find fault with himself also. It is a human nature and if I have complained or ridiculed anyone, I seek his pardon. I forgive and forget myself and others. The book may not be for the use of many but may hold interest of the journalists and if it is so, then I am a success. It is for you readers to decide. Book dedication To my mother who has always been an inspiring force to me.

This volume explores ideas of home, belonging and memory in migration through the social realities of leaving and living. It discusses themes and issues such as locating migrant subjectivities and belonging; sociability and wellbeing; the making of a village; bondage and seasonality; dislocation and domestic labour; women and work; gender and religion; Bhojpuri folksongs; folk music; experience; and the city to analyse the social and cultural dynamics of internal migration in India in historical perspectives. Departing from the dominant understanding of migration as an aberration impelled by economic factors, the book focuses on the centrality of migration in the making of society. Based on case studies from an array of geo-cultural regions from across India, the volume views migrants as active agents with their own determinations of selfhood and location. Part of the series Migrations in South Asia, this book will be useful to scholars and researchers of migration studies, refugee studies, gender studies, development studies, social work, political economy, social history, political studies, social and cultural anthropology, exclusion studies, sociology, and South Asian Studies. Cultural Landscapes and the Lifeworld Literary Images of Banaras : Based on the Writings of Kabir, Tulasi, Mirza Ghalib, Bhartendu Harishchandra, Rudra Kashikaya, Bhishma Sahni, Raja Rao, Shivprasad Singh, Abdul Bismillah, Kashinath Singh, Pankaj Mishra This book expounds in a colourful way the diverse literary images that Banaras, the city known as the Cultural Capital of India and the holiest city for Hindus, has inspired and continues to inspire in different writers in the course of history. Few other cities in the world have so sparked the imagination of the artists as this paradoxical and undecipherable city which seems to integrate all contradictions. Kabir, Tulsi Das, Mirza Ghalib, Bharatendu Harishchandra, Rudra

Kashikeya, Bishma Sahni, Raja Rao, Shivprasad Singh, Abdul Bismillah, Kashinath Singh and Pankhaj Mishra, all wrote about the Banaras of their time or of the past. Rana P.B. Singh, an undisputed authority on the city of Banaras, analyses their literary images and the cultural traditions described therein, interpreting them in the purview of cultural symbols and lived traditions which have maintained their continuity since the ancient past. CONTENT Solved Paper 2019 - 2015, Mass Communication/Media Aptitude, General Awareness, English Language/Comprehension , Reasoning & Logical Deduction, Crack Sets (1-3), Answers to Section Tests & Crack Sets. Leaving and Living Censorship has been a universal phenomenon through history. However, its rationale and implementation has varied, and public reaction to it has differed across societies and times. This book recovers, narrates, and interrogates the history of censorship of publications in India over three crucial decades - encompassing the Gandhian anti-colonial movement, the Second World War, Partition, and the early years of Independent India. In doing so, it examines state policy and practice, and also its subversion, in a tumultuous period of transition from colonial to self-rule in India. Populated with an array of powerful and powerless individuals, the story of Indians grappling with free speech and (in)tolerance is a fascinating one, and deserves to be widely known. It will help readers make sense of global present-day debates over free speech and hate speech, illustrate historical trends that change - and those that don't - and help them appreciate how the past inevitably informs the present.

Blood Brothers is M.J. Akbar's amazing story of three generations of a Muslim family - based on his own - and how they deal with the fluctuating contours of Hindu-Muslim relations. Telinipara, a small jute mill town some 30 miles north of Kolkata along the Hooghly, is a complex Rubik's Cube of migrant Bihari workers, Hindus and Muslims; Bengalis poor and 'bhadralok'; and Sahibs who live in the safe, 'foreign' world of the Victoria Jute Mill. Into this scattered inhabitation enters a child on the verge of starvation, Prayaag, who is saved and adopted by a Muslim family, converts to Islam and takes on the name of Rahmatullah. As Rahmatullah knits Telinipara into a community, friendship, love trust and faith are continually tested by the cancer of riots. Incidents - conversion, circumcision, the arrival of the plague of electricity - and a fascinating array of characters - the ultimate Brahmin, Rahmatullah's friend Girija Maharaj; the worker's leader, Bauna Sardar; the storyteller, Talat Mian; the poet-teacher, Syed Ashfaque; the smiling mendicant, Burha Deewana; the sincere Sahib, Simon Hogg; and then the questioning, demanding third generation of the author and his friend Kamala - interlink into a narrative of social history as well as a powerful memoir. Blood Brothers is a chronicle of its age, its canvas as enchanting as its narrative, a personal journey through change as tensions build, stretching the bonds of a lifetime to breaking point and demanding, in the end, the greatest sacrifice. Its last chapters, written in a bare-bones, unemotional style, are the most moving as the author searches for hope amid raw wounds with a surgeon's scalpel.
